ABOUT

I left Spain in 2013 in search of new professional opportunities and the experience of living abroad. Designing and building my own travel blog is when I realised that I really enjoyed programming. I have been exploring the world of web development more seriously since 2017 via online courses with Codeacademy, Udacity and most recently the Web Development Immersive at General Assembly.

My experiences throughout my life have taught me how important it is to have a fulfilling career and to constantly be learning. I have definitely found my passion in Web Development and would love to join a company who are creative and results driven!
